PUBLIC SCHOOL HEALTH WEEK

Hold Exercises Showing What Is Being Done to Promote Health Among Andover Children — Tags Awarded to Those Who Are Found Physically Fit

A colorful pageant given on the lawn of the Central schools Thursday afternoon before a large gathering of parents and friends demonstrated the progress of the health work in the public schools of Andover to promote health among the children. Music, dancing, costumes, hundreds of healthy children playing in the sunshine contributed to an occasion unique in the annals of the local schools.

The pageant opened with a scene in a toy shop where the gorgeously uniformed soldier came to life and conducted his rhythmic orchestra of fifty-two pieces. Milk, Fruit and Vegetables entered in gay costumes in which one recognized tomato-red, orange, green of spinach and the orange-yellow of carrot. This scene closed with Doll's Lullaby sung by blue pajama clad children.

Miss Eleanor Barnard impersonated America in the Pageant of "Health of America". A huge melting pot swung on a tripod received the contribution of thirteen nations and their representatives clad in the costumes of their respective countries—England, Ireland, Greece, Poland, Sweden, Scotland, Italy—among which Scotland received by far the warmest acclaim from the spectators. Following the dance of the nations, they all saluted the American flag. This episode represented "Yesterday" while "Today" was in preparation a group danced the Virginia Reel.

"Today" opened with the physical examination of a child, followed by a pantomime of the proper daily diet, a dance in which children clad in bath towels gaily waved their toothbrushes. A ballgame giving them healthy exercise, and a review of the children who after an examination by a physician have been awarded tags for health improvement, teeth in good condition, and general physical fitness ended Scene II.

The concluding episode "Tomorrow" showed "A Child's Bill of Rights" to be well born, live in a good home, and attend a modern school. All the children joined in singing America the Beautiful.

Miss Edith Moreton, the school nurse, had general oversight and planning of the program. The music was under the supervision of Miss Miriam Sweeney and the

MAY PROCESSION

Children of St. Augustine's Hold Procession at Church—Mary Darby Chosen Queen of May

The annual May procession of St. Augustine's parochial school and Sunday school in Andover was held Sunday afternoon at the church. The procession was confined to the church and grounds as last year and the line was formed in the lower church and moved across in front of the rectory, out to the side-walk and in the main door of the upper church where the children marched about the aisles, taking their places in the center aisle for the usual program after which they returned to the lower church.

The honor of crowning the statue of the Blessed Virgin Mary was held by Miss Mary Darby, student in the eighth grade in the parochial school. A short sermon appropriate to the occasion was delivered to the children by their pastor, Rev. Charles A. Branton, O. S. A., and the program closed with benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament with Fr. Branton officiating. The act of consecration to Our Mother of Good Counsel was said by Miss Dorothy Hendrick and the act of consecration to the Sacred Heart of Jesus by Joseph Winters. The children sang several hymns during the services in the church.

The procession was one of the prettiest held in the parish since the first procession in 1919. The children were prepared and trained by the Sisters of Notre Dame in charge of the parochial school. They were assisted by a group of young ladies of the parish.

The roster of the procession follows:

Cross Bearer—William Doherty
Candle Bearer—James Winters

PUNCHARD PLAY NIGHT

Four One-Act Plays Presented By Members of Senior Class Before Appreciative Audience

A large audience enjoyed the four one-act plays presented in the town hall Wednesday evening by members of the Senior class of the Punchard school. Comedy, mystery, and pantomime offered great variety.

The use of a young and attractive mother to marry off her daughter, who was cultivating a taste for art and literature, rather than for young men, provided delightful comedy in "Evening Dress Indispensable" by Roland Petrie. The clever lines afforded the audience some wholesome laughter and was a foil for "Green Chartruse" by Chester Heywood, in which a slandering door, a woman's screams and running steps and the well-acted pantomime added to the mystery which baffled the audience till the final denouement.

The charming little story of how two young people in modest circumstances yearned for wealth and leisure and found what is of even greater value was told in Essex Dane's "Park Bench". The young actors gave the little drama with real feeling and made it one of the most delightful plays of the evening.

For those who liked thrills and mystery "The Travelers" by Booth Tarkington provided a plenty. More persons than poor, frightened Mrs. Slidell stranded in a lonely hotel in Sicily had such a strange feeling.

Directed by Mervin E. Stevens of the Punchard faculty and assisted by a management in which there was a fine division of labor the four plays proved most successful.

My Experiences in the World War By General John J. Pershing

CHAPTER XVI

Having learned that, despite my recommendations, little or no attention was being given at home to the importance of teaching our men the use of the rifle, it seemed necessary again to emphasize my views, especially after further knowledge of its neglect in allied armies.

The infantry soldier, well trained in stealthy approach and in the art of taking cover, makes a small target and, if an expert rifleman, there is nothing that can take his place on the battlefield.

"Specialties of trench warfare at home," I cabled Washington, September 24, 1917, "should not be allowed to interfere with rifle practice nor with intensive preliminary training in our schools of soldier, company and battalion."

Americans Retain Jurisdiction.

My diary notes the following: Chaumont, Wednesday, Sept. 26, 1917.—The French agree that we should retain exclusive jurisdiction over American soldiers in France.

Chief of ordnance at Washington delays storehouse construction by requesting views of French commissioner regarding our necessities.

Have again cabled relative to carelessness and delay in loading of transports.

The War department had brought up the question of civil jurisdiction over the members of our forces in France and had inquired regarding the attitude of the French.

My judge advocate, Col. W. A. Bethel, presented our opinion to the French authorities, which was that according to the principles of international law, and in view of the conditions under which the American army was serving in France, its members should not be subject to criminal prosecution in French courts but should be answerable only to our own military tribunals. This view was readily accepted by the French, and very properly the jurisdiction over our forces, both civil and military, remained in our hands.

"Great Confusion at Home."

There was ample evidence of great confusion at home due to lack of efficient supervision, even in New York harbor, where experts should have been easy to find. Ships were seldom loaded to their full capacity; supplies greatly needed were often left behind; nonessentials were being sent over; many things were broken due to careless loading; troops were often shipped to one port and their equipment to another.

The Washington bureaus often followed blindly some out-of-date supply table perhaps drawn up under a former regime by an antiquated desk soldier long since retired and forgotten. As an illustration, I recall a bill of lading from one of our transports that was presented to me about this time as a curiosity. It listed a number of articles quite useless to an army in the field and provoked the following cable: "For all departments. Recommend Moreover, it was urgent that the combat troops should be sent inland to receive their battle instruction. The French, although short themselves, had loaned us a few prisoners and also some women as laborers to help out, but neither class was satisfactory. Under the conditions there was danger that our ports would become hopelessly congested, although three weeks later, and after further urgent appeals, the War department promised to send stevedores at once.

Line Training for First Division.

My diary notes the following: Chaumont, Thursday, Oct. 4, 1917.—Gen. de Castelnau called Tuesday to discuss entry of First Division in the line.

Witnessed attack maneuver of the division yesterday and conducted critique.

Ambassador Sharp came today with Mr. Joseph Talmach for a visit and had lunch with us. Have cabled appeal for officers fitted for general staff.

The French, always solicitous regarding the progress of our training,

American Troop Train Passing Through a French Town

no further shipments be made of following articles: . . . bath bricks, book-cases, bathtubs, cabinets for blankets, office desks, floor wax, hose except fire hose, staphylers, lawn mowers, refrigerators, settees, stools, window shades. Further stop orders will follow soon.

We were short-handed, both at depots and along the line of communications, in all classes of labor that should have been sent over long before. The quartermaster corps in France was seriously handicapped in handling, caring for and issuing its stores and supplies.

The need for stevedores had become most urgent. Combat troops were still being used to unload cargo and much time was wasted by the use of labor that was entirely unsuitable for this sort of work through lack of experiwere anxious that our most advanced American unit take its place in a quiet sector, for the experience. The main reason they advanced for suggesting front-line training at this time, with which I fully agreed, was that it would give new encouragement to their armies and through them to the people. The First Division itself was keen to take a more active part and was soon to have the opportunity.

This division had been billeted in the training area since July 15 and had begun to show the excellent effects of the system of training we had prescribed. At the maneuver which I attended the officers handled their units with considerable skill, particularly Capt. F. H. Burr, who conducted an attack with his battalion of the Twenty-eighth regiment, and Maj. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who did a similar problem with his battalion of the Twenty-sixth regiment.

Pleased With Efficiency.

At the division school the bayonet exercises, special target practice, firing with trench mortars, bomb throwing and other trench training were well carried out. I returned much pleased with the evidences of efficiency in this organization, which was later to become famous among the armies on the western front.

My diary says:

Paris, Wednesday, Oct. 10, 1917.

Spent Sunday at Gondrecourt, First division field meet, with General Harbord, General Ragneau and Representative Medill McCormick. We lunched with Bullard.

"Yesterday evening the officers at G. H. Q. called to extend congratulations on confirmation of my appointment as general. All heads of permanent staff departments appointed to grade of brigadier general."

A group of major generals are over on tour of inspection. The staff department heads who became brigadier generals at that time were: James G. Harbord, chief of staff; Benjamin Alford, adjutant general; Harry L. Rogers, quartermaster general; W. A. Bethel, judge-advocate general; Edgar Russell, chief of signal corps; G. C. Williams, chief of ordnance, and A. E. Bradley, chief surgeon.

Officers Visit Battlefields. In accordance with my recommendation, division commanders from the states were being sent over to visit the battlefields, armies and schools in order to become acquainted with conditions and to experience the atmosphere of war. It was important that they should appreciate the realities and become fully impressed with the urgency of thorough preparation of their commands. It was thought they would become impressed with the aggressive spirit that characterized our training in France by coming into close touch with our methods.

These officers were sent to visit the allied fronts and to see demonstrations at our own training fields and schools and were also taken along the line of communication. I took occasion to give them personally my conception of the course of training that should be followed at home, making an especial point of rigid discipline, rifle practice and the instruction of junior officers in open warfare.

A number of the officers sent over were either physically unfit or had reached the age when new ideas fail to make much of an impression, and consequently I recommended that those of both classes be left at home for other duty or to be retired.

Memorial Day Exercises

Early morning exercises at Memorial hall to honor the dead of the Civil and World wars, the procession of patriotic organizations with services at the Memorial tower and various cemeteries filled the morning of Memorial day in Andover. Commander Henry P. Clukey, last commander of General William F. Bartlett, Post 99, G. A. R., took an active part in the observances riding over the entire route by automobile.

The parade was headed by John Henderson, Spanish War veteran as chief marshal with Joseph A. McCarthy, adjutant of Andover Post American Legion and a past commander of North Andover Post 219 and Past Commander Floyd W. Eastman of Veterans as aides. Commander Arthur L. Coleman of Andover Post 8, American Legion led the World War veterans.

Simultaneously with these services Andover Post 8, American Legion held its brief program on the steps of the Memorial Hall led by Commander Arthur L. Coleman. Prayer was offered by Rev. Alfred C. Church, pastor of the Free church and the roll call of the dead was read by Austin Reed, chaplain of the Legion Post.

The parade moved immediately to the Memorial Tower on the Hill where services were held in memory of the World War boys who gave their lives in the World War. Commander Coleman opened the program with a short address. In the absence of Dr. Alfred E. Stearns, the speech was made by Dr. Claude M. Fuess of the P. A. faculty and State historian of the American Legion. The salute was given by the Legion firing squad followed by taps.

The parade formed again and proceeded to the South church cemetery where the Legion firing squad saluted and taps were sounded while veterans and boy scouts decorated graves in the South cemetery and the Episcopal cemetery across the street. Murphy's Arcadians at Roseland-on-the-Merrimack Tonight

Billy Murphy and his sensational Arcadians, who have taken rank as the most consistent ballroom attraction in this district, will return to Roseland-on-the-Merrimack this evening for their third engagement of the season. The Arcadians, who have won nationwide repute through their long-term engagements at New York's million-dollar Arcadia and at the famous Pier ballroom at Old Orchard Beach, possess an uncanny ability to sense the wants of their hearers and the ability to satisfy these desires better than any other visiting band. The regular check dancing week-end party will be held at Roseland tomorrow evening, with Roland Russell and his Rollicking Ramblers occupying the orchestral stage. The Ramblers hold the distinction of having established all-time attendance records at Roseland no less than five times in two seasons, the present mark being 2700 persons.

One of the greatest attractions in Roseland history has been booked for next Friday evening, June 12, when the famous Jimmy Gallagher, America's greatest radio sensation, and his marvelous Palais D'Or orchestra of Boston will make their Merrimack Valley debut. The famous Jimmy is "still hanging on" to the queen's taste—one of the greatest entertainers in American ballrooms. Wherever music is known in New England the name of Jimmy Gallagher is an institution. Perhaps more than anybody else, Jimmy Gallagher has been a tremendous factor in popularizing night club dancing in the Greater Boston district. Naturally, a capacity gathering of dance enthusiasts is looked for. And Roland Russell's Ramblers will play for check dancing on Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

Widening the Home Circle

TELEPHONE men build toll lines and telephone operators set up connections. That's our job, and, of course, we get paid for it. But there is a satisfaction outside of the pay envelope, in knowing that what we do helps to bring about such happy family reunions as the one mentioned in the following letter. It was written to us by a Boston business man, and referring particularly to extension telephones, he said:

"These conveniences should interest especially the many members of the Grandparents' Club. Age and youth both delight in talking over the wires. A couple of members of this great club, whom I know very well, have a grandson in a far-away Canadian city; they also have a telephone and an extension set, both with long cords. At 8:30, on prearranged evenings, they park the telephone instruments together on a small table, flanked by two chairs, and proceed to call the distant number. When the connection is made, grandson and grandparents have a three cornered conference; there is no waiting for turns or repeating, and nobody misses a word. It's the next best thing to a visit."

THREE cheers for the Grandparents' Club! May its membership flourish. But why stop there? How about the Mothers' Club, the Fathers' Club, the Brothers' and Sisters' Club? Why not merge them all into one big Home Circle Club? Its aim to be the widening of the Home Circle by keeping in touch with absent members through the most personal of modern inventions—the telephone.

It's letters like this that make a job worth doing. They inspire and stimulate. They lend perspective to our work and allow an insight into its effects. And the inspiration which they kindle must, of necessity, result in more enthusiastic and intelligent service to our customers.

Real New England Bread

For years and years New England housewives have been famous for the bread they bake. The progress of modern machinery and traveling ovens, however, has taken bread making out of the home and placed it in big, modern, sanitary plants like that of the 20th Century Bakery. . . . Today it is still possible to have real HOME-MADE BREAD like New England women are famous for making by ordering—

Christian Liberty

To the Editor of Townsman:
In his memorial sermon Rev. James Henry, pastor of Park Avenue Methodist church, N. Y., told the following story:

It relates to "an American soldier quartered on the edge of a French village during our late war. The American was killed in his first engagement. The only church at hand was the Roman Catholic, the only clergyman the priest, the only cemetery that of the Roman church. It was against the rules for a Protestant to be buried in consecrated ground. Realizing that the American boy had come 3000 miles to die for France, the priest ordered that the grave be prepared outside the cemetery as close as possible to the separating wall. Next morning the wall was found to be outside the grave. The priest had spent the night taking stone by stone and moving it so that the wall might include the grave." Here was a spirit of brotherhood that "lived in spite of the war."

I challenge any normal man whether Jew, Catholic or Protestant, black or white, of whatever nationality or degree of culture in the whole round world to visualize this scene, sound the depth of motive in that priest's soul and at the same time fail to approve and glorify his conduct.

As well attempt to wall in the fragrance of a garden of roses as to attempt to confine a Christlike spirit within any man-made Canon law or church creed.

All through the ages men have been building narrow walls of separation and age after age the spirit of Jesus Christ has been enlarging their boundaries.

For the love of God is broader
Than the measure of man's mind;
And the heart of the Eternal
Is most wonderfully kind.

As the heaven of Christ's spirit slowly works its way into the heart of humanity less and less stress is laid upon class distinctions; "upper crust, middle crust and lower crust" are phrases less significant year by year. They mark man's attempt to cut the loaf of humanity into horizontal layers; into upper and lower; into Jew, Catholic and Protestant; into Popes and Kings, Priests and Ministers, Lords and Serfs.

Jesus Christ knows but one line of cleavage and that is a perpendicular line—never an horizontal. This perpendicular line of division cuts clean through humanity from top to bottom; from Pope to Layman, from King to Subject, from Rich to Poor, from Professor to Scrubwoman. On one side of the line are sheep on the other side goats; those who obey the moral law and those who defy this law, those who are true and those who are untrue, those who are unselfish and those who are selfish, those who nourish a spirit of brotherhood and those who nourish a spirit of hate, those propelled by a holy motive from within and those held to decency by outward restraint alone.

Do any of us doubt on which side of this perpendicular line stood this priest of the story? Can we doubt on which side of this line stands any man or any woman whose loftiest instincts, gathering volume and momentum in life's battles, overlap all man-made walls of division, who dares, like Joan of Arc, to obey the inner voice, at all hazards?

While all France and the Roman Catholic church, are honoring the day of her martyrdom, May 30, 1431, it should not be forgotten that it was an ecclesiastical court of her own countrymen that condemned her for "heresy."

When catechized in her prison by her ecclesiastical inquisitors prior to her going to the stake she was asked if "she was willing to submit all that she had done to the judgment of the church?" Her reply should be harped into the heart of every Christian: "If the church requires me to do something which is contrary to the orders which God has given me I would not do that thing for anything in the world."

So far as a church, or a creed, or an elaborate ritual contributes to a higher quality of Christian living, so far may it claim divine sovereignty; but when any church, or church council, or institution of any kind, whether it be Jewish, Catholic or Protestant is found to be restrictive of the free play of man's noblest spiritual impulses, when it attempts to prescribe a limit outside of which God's forgiveness and mercy are withheld from mankind, then great souls, like the priest of this story and Joan of Arc, are justified in enlarging these earthly boundaries and ignoring any intermediary agency that threatened to hinder a direct approach to God. I love to think of this priest and Joan of Arc as embodying a true type of Christian Liberty.

Wedding

JACQUES—LIVINGSTON

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Porter Livingston on Lowell street Wednesday afternoon at half past two o'clock when their daughter, Myrtle Pettigill, was united in marriage to William Jacques of 69 Maple avenue by the Rev. Newman Matthews. The bride's attendants included Miss Olive Hardy, a cousin of the bride as maid of honor, the Misses Mary and Rita Dowd, twin sisters, music pupils of the bride, as ring bearers and little Miss Barbara Whitten as flower girl. The best man was Robert Jacques, brother of the groom.

The bride entered on her father's arm to the strains of Lohengrin's bridal chorus played by Miss Eleanor Peterson and was given in marriage by her father. The bride's gown was ivory satin cut on train with a lace jacket. She wore a tulle veil cap style and carried a shower bouquet of white tea roses and valley lilies.

The maid of honor was dressed in lettuce green chiffon with picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. The twin ring bearers were dressed in light blue organdie with blue rosette hair ribbons to match and carried the rings in blue heart-shaped boxes. The little flower girl was dressed in pink and carried a basket of flowers from which she showered petals. After the reception refreshments were served by the Lafalot club girls. The gifts from the bride to her attendants were a white gold sapphire ring to the maid of honor, strings of pearls to the ring bearers, a gold bracelet to the little flower girl and to the pianist a silver chain with pearl pendant. The groom's gift to the best man was a Waterman's fountain pen and pencil. Many beautiful wedding gifts were received including gifts from California and North Carolina. About 75 guests were present from Lowell, Lawrence, Neponset, Chelmsford, North Wilmington, Wakefield, Medford, Dorchester, Palmer and Milton. After the wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Jacques will be at home after July 10.

A Song of Summer

Oh! the summer days are coming
And the partridges are drumming
And my heart is light and sunny as the day.
Overhead the geese are winging
To the Northland they are winging
For the summer days are calling far away.

When the roses are perfuming
And the honeybees are zooming
All the air is filled with sweetness and with noise
In the fields among the clover
Playing back and forth and over
You can hear a group of laughing girls and boys.

Hark! at last a roll of thunder
See the cattle look in wonder
Now the driving rain is falling in a sheet
You can hear their wailing
In the meadow near the mowing
As they hurry on to find a snug retreat.

After rain, the birds are flying
And the south winds they are sighing
All among the blossoms, flowers, night and gay,
'Tis a time of joy and gladness
Chasing far away all sadness
And my heart is singing—singing all the day.

Appeals Fine in Neighborhood Row

Fines totalling $80 were imposed on William Christie, 25, of Old County road, Andover, in District court Wednesday morning when he was adjudged guilty of trespassing, malicious injury to a fence and malicious injury to personal property of Tahar G. Davis of Old County road, chief at Andover academy. He appealed and was held in bonds of $150 for his appearance at the next session of Superior court.

The court action resulted from the breaking down of a fence and two no trespassing signs on the Davis property last Saturday. Chief Frank Smith of Andover testified that the police have been called several times to settle neighborhood quarrels ever since the Peters and Christie property was sold a year ago.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Davis testified that Christie came to their property Saturday and tore down the fence and signs and made threats of what he would do if they were put up again.

Christie denied tearing down the signs or fence and stated that the road where the fence was, had been open for over twenty years. He admitted that he sold the property and there was no mention in the deed about a fence.

William Fairbrother and his wife both testified that the fence was on their land as was one of the signs. They stated that the fence blocked the passage and they were obliged to go more than a mile around. Both stated that they did not see anyone take down the signs.

Exeter Takes Lead in Track Series

Record-breaking performances featured the annual track and field meeting between Andover and Exeter, Saturday afternoon. Four new variety marks were set by the Blue and Exeter. The final score was 72 to 54 in favor of Exeter.

It was the second consecutive year that the New Hampshire boys downed Andover for on their own track last year they won, 70 1-2 to 55 1-2.

Of the fourteen events the visitors took ten first places for a total of 50 points, only four less than scored by the home team in the combined total. The latter cleaned up only in the broad jump, when Ed Calvin, Charlie Rose and Walter Fitz finished in that order.

Records were made by Captain Allan F. Blackman of Palo Alto, California, who stepped the furlong in 21 3-5 seconds; by Joseph J. Johnson, who tossed the discus 132 feet, 3 inches; by Keith S. Brown of Andover who went 13 feet, 1-2 inch in the pole vault, and John Badman, of the Blue, who cleared 6 feet, 11 1-8 inches, in the high jump.

Following the pole vault performance, Brown was presented with a beautiful trophy by Head Coach Ray A. Shepard on behalf of the student body.

By winning Saturday, Coach Henry C. Carrell's charges took the lead in the annual track series between the rival prep schools. The Exonians have now won 18 times to 17 for the Blue. In 1915 the meet was tied at 48 all.

There were many thrilling events to please the gathering. The mile run, won by P. Schen of New York, proved an interesting event as he beat out Joseph G. Duchesne, Jr., of Lawrence to the tape. The 440-yard event, the pole vault and the high jump also provided excellent competition with each school having their respective stars.

Andover tallied her points mostly on second and third places, the broad jump being the only clean sweep of the entire afternoon in variety competition. In three events, the javelin, 100-yard dash and the 220-yard low hurdles, the Exonians totaled 24 points to but three for the Blue. All of the latter's came in third places.

Exeter outscored Andover, 44 to 19, on the track, while the Blue ruled supreme in the field events by the margin of seven points, 35 to 28. On the track Exeter took six firsts, three seconds and five third places while in the field events they took four firsts, two seconds and a tie for second.

Summary of events:
100-yard dash—Won by A. F. Blackman, Exeter, second, R. H. Short, Exeter; third, E. E. Calvin, Andover. Time: 10:15.

220-yard dash—Won by A. F. Blackman, Exeter; second, E. E. Calvin, Andover; third, O. J. Cahoon, Exeter. Time: 50:3-5.

880-yard run—Won by D. E. Murray, Exeter; second, J. Dorman, Andover; third, J. B. Bliss, Exeter. Time: 2m., 42-5.

1 mile run—Won by J. P. Schen, Exeter; second, J. G. Duchesne, Jr., Andover; third, M. Cobb, Exeter. Time: 4m., 35-4-5.

Hammer throw—Won by D. W. Strickland, Jr., Exeter, 158 ft. 8 in.; second, H. A. Gardner, Jr., Andover, 142 ft. 2 inches; third, C. S. Strauss, Andover, 138 ft., 3 in.

Running high jump—Won by J. Badman, Andover, 6 ft., 11 1-8 in. (new meet record); second, L. Scheffy, Exeter, 5 ft., 11 in.; third, K. S. Brown, Andover, 5 ft., 10 in.

SECOND TEAM COMPETITION

For the first time in seven years of competition the Exeter second team defeated the Andover second team in a dual track meet last Saturday at Andover. The meet held in conjunction with the varsity affair between the two schools proved interesting and some good performances were exhibited. The count when all points had been tabulated was 66 to 60 in favor of the up-staters.

Two records, the discus throw and javelin throw went by the boards during the meet. Alfred L. Greenlaw of the Blue tossed the discus 113 feet 5 inches to break the existing record of 112 feet 8 inches made by Cousen of Exeter in the meet of 1927. In the javelin R. P. Kingsbury tossed the spear a distance of 162 feet. This shattered the old mark of 154 feet 9 inches by William Murray, Andover, 1930.

The second team meet was more closely contested with the points being more equally divided than that of the varsity affair. Each team had a clean sweep. The visitors took nine points in the pole vault while the Blue cleaned up in the high jump.

William G. Dwyer, an Andover boy, made the second team shot-put mark when he tossed the iron ball, one-quarter of an inch less than the 42-foot mark.

In this affair the home team athletes won on the field, 41 to 22, and lost again on the track 44 to 19. Exeter tallied nine first places of the 14 contested.

Summary of events:
100-yard dash—Won by R. S. Brookings, 2d, Exeter; second, W. H. Bird, Andover; third, S. B. Harmon, Exeter. Time: 10:3-5.

220-yard dash—Won by W. H. Bird, Andover; second, R. H. Wilder, Exeter; third, W. L. Mitchell, Jr., Andover. Time: 23:2-5.

440-yard run—Won by F. F. Morrill, Exeter; second, S. Thorne, Andover; third, H. P. Brightwell, Jr., Andover. Time: 54:3-5.

ROGER W. BABSON SAYS INVENTIVE GENIUS
SHOULD BE DIRECTED ALONG NEW LINES

Economist Believes Unemployment Solution Depends upon Development of New Industries and New Improved Products—Hard Work Will Reduce Costs—Greatest Savings Coming through Increased Efficiency

Babson Park, Massachusetts, June 5, 1931. The root of this unemployment difficulty, as I see it, goes back to the question of inventions. If it were possible to chart the work of the research laboratories it would show a chart a good deal like the trend of business cycles. There would be first a period when there is a plentiful supply of labor and the research laboratories are devoted to the developing of new industries. This automatically takes up the surplus of labor until wages are high and workers scarce. Then the same laboratories direct their efforts to labor saving devices, which in turn continue until there is a surplus of labor and wages are lower. In the long run both labor saving inventions, and inventions of new products which form the basis of new industries, are highly desirable for economic progress. To keep business normal, however, there should be a balance between inventions to eliminate labor in old industries and inventions to create labor in new industries.

This is the time when large industrial laboratories should be concentrating on developing new products rather than labor saving machinery. Present conditions are fostering just this trend. Labor is being liquidated and it is not so essential for manufacturers to install labor-saving machinery. Although in certain cases such machinery means the saving of a tremendous margin on labor costs, on the average the margin is relatively small. In times of prosperity and high wages manufacturers feel justified in installing such devices, but in times of unemployment and depression, like the present, the margin of saving is often insufficient to warrant such installations.

Purchasing Power and Employment

The return to world prosperity awaits the making available to the poorer classes more of the products which are today available to only the more favored classes. You cannot do this by legislation. If England, for example, instead of spending vast sums on unemployment doles, had spent the same money on industrial research to develop new products, new industries, and new marketing methods, the employment situation in that country today would be no problem, and the general standard of living would be much higher. Business depends upon purchasing power, which in turn depends upon greater employment and reduced prices. Up to a certain point labor-saving devices and methods are the only way costs can be reduced, but each new device of this sort also contributes to unemployment. At present the best way to reduce costs is for labor to give more work for the pay it receives. Wages and salaries are being reduced to some extent, but the greatest savings are coming through increased efficiency and stricter attention to work by both labor and management.

In the natural course of events employment will become more plentiful as demand for products of present industries again revives. We need something more permanent, however. I believe the fundamental requirement is for the development of new and improved products and methods as the result of intensive industrial research. It is the development of the automobile, the radio, electrical expansion, and new household appliances which helped bring America out of the 1921-1922 depression to the unparalleled prosperity of the next six years. What will be the new development that will help bring us out of the current depression?

Promising Developments

No one knows exactly what discoveries or inventions will become most promising during the next five years. I, however, feel that aviation will play a prominent part. Greater speed and safety are needed and these will be developed. The autogyro is extremely promising because of its safety and small space required for taking off and landing. Its speed, however, is now lower than that of the regular airplane. Nevertheless, we shall see tremendous developments along the line of the autogyro principle. Thomas Edison calls the autogyro "the egg of Columbus"—which shows what one great inventor thinks of its possibilities.

Great advances will occur in refrigeration. Five years ago there were only 75,000 electric refrigerators sold in this country, but in 1930 there were 775,000 which illustrates the rapid rate of growth. Moreover, the price has been reduced from an average of $350 per unit to $255. The new refrigerators are, of course, replacing ice boxes, but they will further expand the market by showing people who never used much ice the economic value of refrigeration. A great untapped market lies in the field of cooling of houses in summer. Already a household air-cooling device is being advertised and others will follow. Many theaters are now equipped with central cooling plants, but a tremendous potential market exists for home cooling.

The Market Basket

by the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and the Woman's Division of the President's Emergency Committee for Employment

Family Food Guide

Every meal—Milk for children, bread for all.

Every day—Cereal in porridge or puddings. Potatoes. Tomatoes (or oranges) for children. A green or yellow vegetable. A fruit or additional vegetable. Milk for all. Two to four times a week—Tomatoes for all. Dried beans and peas or peanuts. Eggs (especially for children). Lean meat, fish or poultry, or cheese.

Tomatoes or oranges are important to normal nutrition in the low cost diet, according to the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture. In the weekly market orders outlined for individuals of differing ages and families of varying sizes by the bureau on its publication, "The Family's Food at Low Cost," one pound of fresh or canned tomatoes or its equivalent in oranges is allowed for the child two years old or less. Adults must have from one and one-half to two pounds, the food guide points out.

The choice of canned or fresh tomatoes or oranges may depend entirely on their cost at the time of purchase. At present, fresh tomatoes are expensive except in the southern states which are now producing them for shipment but as the season advances they will be progressively cheaper. As for the canned variety, bargains are to be found almost daily especially in the No. 2 cans. Many stores are selling good quality tomatoes in cans of this size three for a quarter—sometimes cheaper—which means that each one, holding more than a pint, costs about eight cents.

Since there are so many ways of using tomatoes, their use, except in cases of true idiosyncrasy, is almost unlimited. They can be baked plain or stuffed; broiled, fried, stewed; mixed with cheese for tomato rabbit, and baked with onions, cabbage, or celery. Canned corn, cheese, and tomatoes make a delicious combination to serve on toast and many combinations with eggs and rice can be served as one dish meals. Tomato aspic salad which is inexpensive is a pleasant variation for hot weather.

The tomato juice cocktail, which has so recently achieved widespread popularity, is another pleasant way of serving this necessary vegetable. Plain tomato juice may be given to infants as soon as they are permitted to have orange juice with which it can safely be alternated.

The nutritive value of tomatoes has not always been recognized. Less than twenty years ago food and dietary specialists spoke of it as being of no value except as it added color and flavor to a meal. It is now known as an excellent source of Vitamin C, the anti-scorbatic vitamin, and a good source of three others A, B, and G, the bureau points out. This means that tomatoes contain the vitamins which promote normal growth and help to keep the tissues of the eye, ear, nose, and throat resistant to infection; stimulate the appetite; aid in the digestive processes and prevent pellagra.

Investigation has shown that canned tomatoes, if processed by the cold pack method as are all commercial packs, have essentially the same Vitamin C content as field ripened tomatoes even up until nine months after being canned. The same is not true of tomatoes canned in the open kettle, for Vitamin C is unstable during oxidation. Many inquiries are received by the bureau on the effect of ripening tomatoes off the vine. The answer is that slightly less Vitamin C develops in the fruit when artificially ripened than when it is permitted to mature in the field. But it does develop to practically the same degree whether ripened in a dark or light room and with ethylene gas.

In addition to the vitamin content, tomatoes develop an alkaline reaction in the body, according to Miss Charlotte Chatfield, head of the Food Composition Division of the bureau. If eaten in liberal quantities they help to counter-balance the effects of acid forming foods like meat, cheese, cereals, and eggs, she says. Since the tendency of the American diet is toward an acid reaction this is a decided advantage.

To the layman the alkaline effect of acid tasting foods, such as tomatoes, is often puzzling. The various mineral elements in tomatoes, especially potassium, are responsible for their alkalinity. A simple way to fix this fact in mind might be to remember that acid tasting foods seldom increase the acid reaction of the body fluids, but those that furnish large proportions of protein usually do.

Under the Mapes law, passed by the last Congress, canners must label canned foods, including tomatoes, to show the standard of the product. The law regulates the quantities of pulp, juice and skin in canned tomatoes.

A family of ten including three adults and seven children should buy every week:

Rebuilding Cities

I look for great development in city street construction, such as elevated highways, parking devices, automatic garages, and other recent discoveries which promise to practically rebuild the modern city. The rubber industry stands on the threshold of important new developments in the construction of rubber pavements, rubber floors, etc. With rubber at six cents a pound and with the prospects of making it synthetically out of oil, it may well become a cheap and efficient covering material for many kinds of surfaces. This should greatly develop the industry besides solving the noise problem. It is possible that we shall be kept warm by invisible rays given off by devices similar to huge X-ray tubes. Television is striding rapidly forward and will be a promising feature in the coming decade. Just as the miniature golf course last year came as a lifesaver to the summer amusement industry, so the miniature movie house, which is already coming in vogue, may become an important factor in amusements.

Spiritual as well as Mechanical Development Needed

Work now being done in the laboratories of such companies as General Electric, Aluminum Company of America, American Telephone, du Pont, General Motors, and others, is providing the basis for great new industries of the next ten years. Some of these may create entirely new public demands; others the expansion of branches of old industries; others the replacement of present businesses by new ones. The net result, however, is sure to be beneficial to the welfare of the people as a whole.

These new things will mean further increase in living standards after the present depression is over. However, we need more than mechanical and technical development—we need spiritual development. A fundamental cause of the world depression was that people everywhere were unprepared spiritually to stand prosperity. We became selfish, greedy, careless, and imbued with the gambling spirit. Now by hard work, thrift, efficiency and square dealing, we are gradually working out of our troubles. All the inventions that man can devise will be futile unless we remember the spiritual and moral lessons we have learned.

Business by the Babsonchart now registers 28 per cent below normal compared with 10 per cent below normal at this time a year ago.

RECIPES

BEEF STEW WITH VEGETABLES
3 lbs. beef, rump or round
1-2 cup flour
4 onions chopped
2 quarts water

6 cups diced potatoes
4 cups diced carrots
Salt
4 tablespoons chopped parsley
Wipe the meat and cut it in inch cubes. Try out the fat in a skillet and add the meat which has been rolled in the flour. Then transfer the meat and onions to a kettle. Add the water, after first pouring it into the skillet so as to get full benefit of the browned meat canning. The stew should simmer about 1 hour, add the vegetables, and cook until they are tender. Season with salt and sprinkle the top with the parsley after the stew is placed in the serving dish.

BAKED EGGS AND RICE IN TOMATO SAUCE
1 1-2 cup uncooked rice
3 cups canned tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
1 bay leaf
1-2 chopped onion

6 cloves
3 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons flour
7 eggs
1-2 cup grated cheese
1 cup buttered crumbs
Cook the rice in a large quantity of boiling, salted water about 20 minutes. Drain, wash in hot water, and place over steam. Prepare a sauce by cooking the tomatoes and seasoning for 10 minutes, strain and thicken with the blended fat and flour. Make a layer of rice in a shallow greased baking dish, drop the raw eggs carefully on the rice, pour the hot sauce over the eggs, sprinkle over the top the grated cheese mixed with the bread crumbs, and bake in a moderate oven until the eggs are set. Serve at once.

TOMATO RUFFLE
1 pound salt pork
2 quarts sliced onions
2 quarts tomatoes
Sugar

Salt
Pepper
4 tablespoons flour
8 tablespoons water
Cook the salt pork until brown and crisp. Add the onions and when they are brown, pour in the tomatoes. Season with sugar, salt, and pepper to taste. Cook about 10 minutes. Mix the flour and water, stir into the vegetable mixer until it thickens and cook for a few minutes longer. Serve on crisp toast.

TOMATO ASPIC SALAD
6 tablespoons gelatin
tin
1 cup cold water
2 quarts canned tomatoes
4 or 6 slices onions
3 tablespoons salt

2 teaspoons sugar
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
4 tablespoons chopped celery
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 cups shredded cabbage
Soak the gelatin in the cold water for 5 minutes. Boil the tomatoes and onion for 5 minutes, strain through a fine sieve, pour the hot tomato juice over the softened gelatin, and stir until it is dissolved. Add the salt and sugar and chill. When the gelatin mixture is partly set, add the finely chopped vegetables, and mix well. Add more salt if needed. If the mixture is not tart enough, add a little lemon juice or vinegar. Pour into wet custard cups and place in a cold place until set, turn out on crisp lettuce leaves, and serve with mayonnaise.

Here are three fine points in frying potatoes: Use a heavy skillet, let the pieces brown on one side before turning them; and cook only enough at one time to cover the bottom of the skillet, in a fairly thin layer.

Perhaps the worst and most peculiar storm that has struck Andover for years visited here on last Saturday afternoon. It started about three o'clock with thunder and lightning, great dark clouds coming out of the west and soon afterwards rain began to fall. It was not long before hail as large as marbles descended and the size was increased until pieces of ice as large as an egg came down with great force in larger quantities. The rain also increased in volume and the streets were flooded even with the curbing. A canoe was paddled up and down Locke street on the waters that so quickly overflowed the culverts. Considerable damage was done to the greenhouses of Warren L. Johnson. Miss Margaret Gray and Mr. Cann. Two citizens raked enough hail from their lawns to freeze ice cream.

The photographic studio owned by Leonard Sherman was badly damaged by fire which broke out shortly after three o'clock yesterday afternoon. The fire originated from an overturned kettle of paraffin.

Tea woman was entertaining a lady of the old school who prides herself on her housewifely attainments. Although the latter came to the city after an absence in a little country town for many years, she went through the sights of the city unmoved. But at dinner, on the night of her arrival her eyes moistened as she gazed on ice cubes tinkling in her glass of water. In response to the tender solicitations of the woman, she said, "I try to keep my house neat and clean, but I've never been able to chip ice so straight as you do."—New York Sun.

The Self-Improvement society met on Tuesday at the home of E. W. Boutwell. A very interesting talk was given by Rev. J. Edgar Park.

Charles Flint is at the Lowell General hospital where he will undergo an operation. Hudson Wilcox is having a large barn built on his farm. Brown & Son of Lawrence are doing the work.

Fred met Dick on the way to the station.

"Good gracious, old man," said Fred, "how did you manage to hurt your eye?"

"It was done by a man whose wedding I attended as best man," Dick explained, "just because I kissed the bride."

"But, my dear old man," exclaimed his friend, "it's the custom for the best man to kiss the bride."

"Dick put his hand to the injured eye."

"Yes, I know it is," he replied. "But this was five years after the ceremony."—London Answers.

Model of Power Plant on Exhibition in Lawrence

A working model of the New England Power association's new hydro-electric plant at Fifteen Mile Falls is now on exhibition in the Lawrence Gas and Electric company. President and Agent Fred H. Sargent who set the model in motion, announced today that it would remain in Lawrence for a limited time and extends a general invitation to all customers of the Lawrence Gas and Electric company and other interested citizens to visit the display room and inspect the model.

Just as the Fifteen Mile Falls development is one of the largest construction jobs ever completed in New England, this model is said to be one of the largest of its kind ever shown in this vicinity. It is 11 1/2 feet long, 7 feet wide, and reaches a height of 8 1/2 feet in the back.

This model shows with great fidelity of detail this great dam and power house which many Lawrence citizens have visited since it went into service on October 1, 1930. Even in miniature the massiveness of the dam across the river can be realized. Built under the shadow of this huge dam, the power house, containing four of the largest generating units in New England, appears very small, yet this power house itself is exceeded in size by only a few buildings in New England. Actually it is 231 feet long, 95 feet wide and 103 feet high.

It is also interesting to note that the retaining wall on the east or New Hampshire bank of the dam represents the largest block of solid concrete on the North American continent. Into this concrete fill were poured 83,000 cubic yards of concrete.

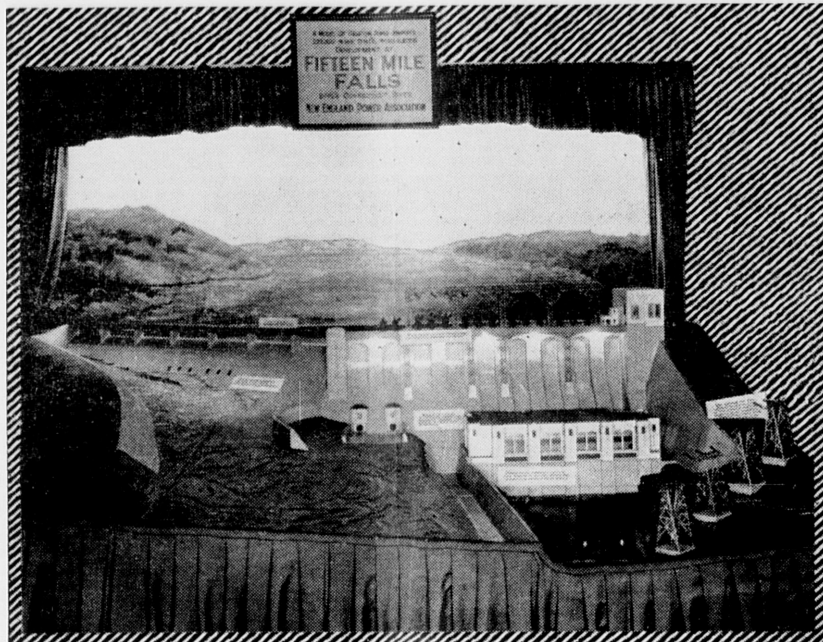

On the Vermont side of the plant is the overflow spillway which might be described as the safety valve of the development. In times of unusually high water sluice gates in this part of the structure can be opened and thus send the excess water down the river. Water conditions in northern New Hampshire and Vermont were so favorable during April that these sluice gates were opened several times.

Although the Fifteen Mile Falls plant has only been in operation eight months, it has already demonstrated its value in rounding out the New England Power association system. During April this plant turned out 56,294,900 kilowatt hours.

In front of the working model may be seen the beginning of the 220,000 volt transmission line which runs southeast across New Hampshire for 126 miles to its terminus in nearby Tewksbury.

One of the best views of this unusual and interesting model is to be had from the inside of the showroom rather than from the street, as the set-up of the model does not permit a view of the lake formed by the dam from the street.

Andover All-Club Defeats Exeter

Although each team made only three hits the Andover All-club baseball team gained a 4 to 1 victory over the Exeter All-club team at the Old Campus Wednesday afternoon.

Runs for the Blue, with the exception of a long home run into deep center field by Corrigan came as a result of errors by the New Hampshire lads. The circuit drive came in the eighth inning with nobody on base.

Exeter's only run came across in the fifth inning when C. Hausman hit for the circuit. His clout rolled almost down to the Science building in deep center field.

Laird, who twirled for the Blue, allowed only three hits and struck out 14 in the opening batter. The Blue team was under the direction of James Reilly, varsity soccer coach. Forrest Duncan of Lawrence was umpire. The score:

George Washington the Bookman

Visitors to Mount Vernon, if they make the usual cursory tour of the house, come away with the belief that they have seen in the library the books of George Washington precisely as he left them. If they later learn that these books are in many cases simply other copies of volumes Washington is known to have possessed, they are deeply disappointed and wonder why the Boston Athenaeum should own and keep such a large number of the original books from Washington's library.

How many books did Washington really own, and how did he stand as a bookman among men of his day? This was the question asked of Dr. Herbert Putnam, librarian of the Library of Congress by a representative of the Division of Information and Publication of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

"Ah, you must not expect me to give you an offhand answer to a question of that importance," said Dr. Putnam.

"Of course Washington, man of action and affairs, was no such reader as Thomas Jefferson, and had no such collection of books as Jefferson's library, now safe in the Library of Congress. It is fortunate that we have preserved for us the considerable remnants of Washington's collection saved by a popular subscription raised in Boston to prevent their being scattered."

In answer to the inquiry as to how this act of veneration came about, Dr. Putnam referred the interviewer to a learned assistant who quickly placed him in touch with the authorities on this subject.

These authorities show how many volumes went to Boston, but it is doubtful if posterity will know exactly how many books Washington did possess. It is known that he lent books, and doubtless he had the luck of the lender. That is, many a book borrowed was never returned. The curious may find on file in the Orphan's Court of Fairfax County, Virginia, the appraisers' exact list of the Washington library as it was after his death and probate of his will. But even these thousand or so titles represent but a part of the books Washington is thought to have owned.

Volumes have been written on this question of Washington's inclinations as a reader. Most of these authorities give themselves up to rhapsody and speculation. The one fact that is indisputable is that on the death of Justice Bushrod Washington, a number of books formerly belonging to the First President were bequeathed by him to his nephew, and from that nephew were bought by a Mr. Henry Stevens of London, who meant to place them in the hands of the Boston Museum. There the Washington books might now be but that a group of Boston patriots, members of the private library known as the Boston Athenaeum, clubbed together and bought for $3,750 this collection from time to time.

Incidentally it was this same Boston institution which, in 1831, bought the most famed Stuart portraits of George and Martha Washington. These were acquired from the family of the artist, for the sum of $1,500 which stands recorded in the official records of the Athenaeum as "an absurdly small sum now seems for these invaluable pictures."

As every visitor to Boston knows, this pair of portraits, perhaps the best known in the country, has been lent by the Athenaeum to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, so that they may be seen by thousands of admirers every year, where otherwise they would be visible only to the users of a private library.

Returning to the known books of Washington, just what did he read? By the infallible list of the appraisers' list, he bought chiefly books of information. Naturally authorities on military science interested him. Next in importance he seems to have rated books on agriculture and husbandry. At the head of the appraisers' list stands the American Encyclopedia of that period, in ten volumes. One volume with a title calculated to amuse the sophisticates of the present day is "Royal Grammar, for young Gentlemen and Ladies." Another striking title in the list is "Jeffries Aerial Voyages."

Washington read Shakespeare, and occasionally quoted him. He read Homer's Iliad and the Odyssey in the Pope translation. He owned the Letters of Junius, Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, the Letters of Voltaire, Chesterfield's Letters, Seneca's Moral Essays, and the prose of Swift, Sterne and Addison.

Fiction seems to have entered very sparingly into Washington's reading. To repeat, he read for information rather than for entertainment. Nevertheless we find among his books Don Quixote, Gulliver's Travels, Hudibras, Peregrine Pickle and a book called "The History of a Foundling" which sounds very much like "Tom Jones."

Whatever Washington did read, he regarded books as of sufficient importance to warrant the building a wing to his house to serve as a library, and visitors to Mount Vernon come away with the opinion that it was the most interesting and attractive room in the house. And Washington is known to have passed much of his life, at his work there.

Washington Current Comment

At a banquet for American mayors, given in Paris, two visiting officials walk out because wine is served, stating that they believe in following the Constitution of the United States even on foreign soil. Their motives may be praiseworthy but their reasoning is faulty. They could not very well follow the Constitution into a country to which the Constitution has not yet gone. The wets will denounce them as bores, the dries praise them as torch-bearers, and the neutral smile at them as poor lawyers.

The family of Alfred Wegener, who headed the German expedition into Greenland, have decided that his body is to rest in the Arctic waste in which he met his end. The instinct that prompts most of us to bring the bodies of the departed back to the home-land, is gentle and tender, but it does the dead no good, and often imposes upon the living, a burden which the dead would have sought to avoid. After all, "Where should the soldier sleep but where he fell?"

The Soviet organization advertises jobs for the jobless, films the resulting mob for the purposes of propaganda, and sends those who responded away empty-handed, a scurvy trick to which even the heartless old regime of the Czars would not have stooped. Those of the workers who have pinned their faith to Russian Communism will find, as time goes by, that the supply of gold bricks is without limit.

Diogenes, in search of an honest man, had been blown out of his lamp, had been operating in New York. A seventy-two year old citizen of that state, finding that he is able to work, returns his old age pension stipend.

The trust of little Willie, up in Yonkers, in his parents, has received a jolt which will last him a lifetime. To keep him away from the river, his mother told him that a boy had been drowned. He believed it, passed the story on to the police, and the cops dragged the Hudson an hour for the non-existing body. The maxim "Do evil that good may come of it" doesn't always work out as expected.

Spain and Italy have new troubles of their own, arising out of the relations between Church and State. The subject is one which cannot be discussed without acrimony and offense, and the United States is to be congratulated upon being remote from the discussion. The police established by the founders of the government fortunately have never been disturbed, and we are left free in our religious and political preferences, to a degree unknown to much of continental Europe.

With a raise in Federal taxes as a small but clearly visible cloud on the horizon, economy continues to be urged. The navy is willing to do its share, and as a first step has put a stop to hysteronizing the decks of vessels, because it wears them out.

One of the Gold Star mothers, on a visit to France, had to go to a hospital for a blood transfusion. Considering the amount of American blood spilled in that country, there ought to have been many who were willing to help her out.

All states except Delaware, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Vermont, Virginia and the District of Columbia have received less than their share of appointments in the apportioned Departmental Service at Washington, D. C.

"No," answered Bobby, "but you are."—Tit-Bits.
